Artisan beer, a centuries-old brew infused with aromatic Earl Grey Tea. The brewery prides itself on using entirely natural ingredients and using traditional production methods. Beer in Chile dates back to the mid-19th century. Since then, beer has become an important part of Chilean life and can be found in abundance at social gatherings, but in recent years the country has experienced a booming demand for craft or artisan beers. In response, several new microbreweries have opened throughout the country, introducing local beer lovers to an impressive range of new tastes.

Methods and Directions

EARL GREY BEER

- The liquid obtained from maceration (softening) is boiled during 90 minutes, adding, in various moments, quantities of Lupulo (hops) until the desired bitter taste is achieved.
- At 10 minutes before the boiling is done (minute 80), the Aromatic Earl Grey Tea is added.
- After the final 10 minutes, the fire is turned off and the re-circling is done for 20 minutes till the temperature goes down to 80°C (176 F) and then the liquid will be transferred to the fermenting deposits, adding the yeast and closing hermetically during the fermenting process that will last 7 to 10 days, approximately.
- The temperature of fermentation will be 20°C (68 F) as stable (steady).
